Dean Edwin Watts Chubb, College of Arts And Sciences, To Retire at End of Year

Shakesperean Scholar, Author, and Veteran of Nearly Half Century of Teaching and Administrative Service, Twice Acting President of University

SENIOR dean and twice acting president of Ohio University, Dr. Edwin Watts Chubb of the College of Arts and Sciences has announced his intention of retiring from administrative and teaching duties at the close of the current school year. The veteran educator began teaching immediately after his graduation from Lafayette College in 1887 and will thus have completed forty-nine years of service in classroom and executive office at the time of his retirement.

Dean Chubb came to Ohio University in 1900 as professor of English. Previous to his coming he had taught in state normal schools in Pennsylvania and Wisconsin, and had served as president of Albright College at Myerstown, Pa. At the end of seven years of teaching at Ohio University he was appointed dean of the Liberal Arts College, which is now known as the College of Arts and Sciences.

Throughout the twenty-nine years of his deanship he has continued to teach one or more courses in English, usually in his field of greatest interest and recognized ability, Shakespeare, although he has taught such other subjects as Chaucer, Browning, Tennyson, Wordsworth, History of English Literature, Modern American Literature, The Short Story, and Modern Drama. During his nearly two score years in the classroom at Ohio University more than 9,000 students have been enrolled in his courses.

Besides Lafayette College the retiring dean has studied at Cambridge University, England, and the University of Berlin in Germany. The Master of Arts degree was received from Lafayette in 1890 and in 1906 he acquired the degree of Doctor of Literature from study under Dr. F. A. March, one of the leading English scholars of his time. Albright College bestowed the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws in 1927.

Of those who were members of the faculty at Ohio University at the time of the coming of Dean Chubb only two—Prof. A. A. Atkinson and Dr. Hiram R. Wilson—are now on the faculty roster. The only buildings were Cutler Hall, East and West Wings, Fine Arts Hall, and the then pride of the campus, Ewing Hall. The Class of 1900 was composed of but ten members, while the total enrollment for the three terms of the year 1900-01 was made up of some 400 different students. In 1935 there were 520 four-year and graduate degrees conferred, while the number of resident students enrolled during the year was 3,378.

Four other men were added to the faculty in the same year as Dean Chubb. These were Dr. W. B. Bentley, Dr. W. F. Mercer, Dr. Frank Doan and Dr. Edwin Tausch. Of these only Dr. Bentley, present head of the chemistry department, is now living. Indicative of the care that was taken in the selection of faculty members then, as now, is the fact that Doctors Bentley and Doan brought Ph. D. degrees from Harvard, while the doctorates of Mercer and Tausch came from Cornell and the University of Berlin, respectively.

The deaths of two Ohio University presidents, Dr. Alston Ellis and Dr. E. B. Bryan, were followed by the appointment of Dean Chubb as acting administrator. During his first administration—November 1920 to July 1921—the money to build the Men's Gymnasium was secured, and during the second term—October 1934 to July 1935—the state appropriation secured, even after the Governor's vetoes, was greater than that of the preceding biennium.

Dean Chubb has been director of the Alumni Loan Fund since it was established through his efforts in 1908. The rotating fund, now amounting to $6,456.67 has made possible the making of 1,179—(Continued on page 7)

Four Additional Colleges To Be Formed at Ohio University

Graduate School Planned as Part of Program of Advancement Inaugurated By University President

AS a complement to the establishment of the University College at Ohio University last fall, a rearrangement of the administrative set-up, to include a Graduate College and Colleges of Commerce, Applied Science and the College of Education, will be effected and will become operative in September 1936. President James' announcement of the new college plan is as follows:

No expansion of the existing offerings is involved in this proposal, but rather a re-grouping based on professional emphasis.

The College of Arts and Sciences will remain as the backbone of the University, offering the Bachelor of Arts degree on the traditional basis of a broad cultural program with one or more fields of more intensive training represented by the so-called majors, together with other fields of lesser concentration represented by the so-called minors, and a speaking acquaintance at least with selections from other groups. For students desiring to put greater emphasis on the natural sciences than would be possible in the bachelor of arts curriculum, especially for those looking forward to professional training in medicine, dentistry, chemistry, etc., the Bachelor of Science degree will be offered, as now, within the College of Arts and Sciences. For students in the other divisions of the University, also, the offerings in the College of Arts and Sciences will be available for the more general or non-professional aspects of their work.

On the other hand, the curricula or courses with a definite professional slant will be organized in appropriate divisions. The program leading toward teaching in the public schools as a profession will be emphasized in the College of Education. Curricula in business administration or commerce, now set up within the College of Arts and sciences will be offered through a College of Commerce, with possibly some more specialized degrees in related though not identical fields, like secretarial science and journalism. Professional curricula in the applied sciences, such as engineering, home economics, etc., will be administered through a College of Applied Science, with degrees of Bachelor of Science in the individual fields. And finally, the specialized fields of the Fine Arts, including music, painting and allied arts, and dramatics, will be incorporated in a College of Fine Arts, with the degree of Bachelor of Fine Arts in the appropriate field. Then, too, just as the curricula in the liberal arts and sciences and the professional colleges are built upon the foundation of the University College, so the graduate work, leading to appropriate Masters' degrees, will be organized in a Graduate College built upon the undergraduate curricula.

Thus will the work now actually being offered by Ohio University be given recognition on a more logical basis and the needs of students be more fully met.

Even in this brief

THE ALUMNI GATEWAY

summary, two points must be given special emphasis. First, the proposal carries with it no idea of entering new fields not already given recognition in the University. Second, though the plan provides for a multiple college organization, there is no element of disintegration involved, as might at first seem possible. While each college will be set up with primary reference to the needs of the students looking towards the special fields there emphasized, each college will at the same time be a service college for students in all the others. That is to say, College X, though setting up the requirements for students who wish to secure their degree in the college, cannot discriminate against students registered in another college who wish to pursue work in the first-named college for which they are prepared. In fact, it is virtually impossible to conceive of a student securing a degree in any of the colleges without taking a greater or lesser amount of work in courses set up primarily in one or more of the other colleges.

From the University College, up through the professional colleges, and through the Graduate College, the entire program will be kept in essential unity, while allowing the largest possible latitude for the establishment of degree requirements within the individual units.

Editorial Comment . . .

SEVERAL times during the past year or so we have met graduates of Western Conference schools who scouted the idea that Ohio University's Don Peden had ever been offered the position of head coach of football at Indiana University or that, if offered, he would decline it. So alluring, to their minds, would be an opportunity to break into Big Ten coaching ranks that no one in a "minor league" such as the Buckeye Conference would hesitate for a fraction of a second if given a chance to advance to this older and better known conference. The following paragraphs, appearing in the current issue of the Indiana University Alumni Quarterly, from an address by President William Lowe Bryan to Indiana alumni at a luncheon in Indianapolis on October 19, 1935, should settle the point. While the first paragraph is the one of particular interest, the subsequent ones may well be digested by sports fans who demand that coaches "win or else—" To the glory of Ohio University and the credit of its alumni body it can be said that there are few such fans in our own ranks.

Dr. William Lowe Bryan: "Last year, as is well known, Mr. Clevenger asked Mr. Peden, head football coach at Ohio University, if he would accept a similar position at Indiana. After consideration, Mr. Peden declined the proposal. Mr. Clevenger then went to Ohio and renewed the proposal. Although Ohio offered Mr. Peden no increased inducement to remain, and although Mr. Clevenger proposed a substantial increase of salary at Indiana, Mr. Peden again declined. He gave the reason. He said in substance that Ohio stood by him through victories and defeats, through better seasons and worse, and so gave him a chance to build through years a substantial basis for football there. He said that he was afraid to come to Indiana lest if he should lose a few games influential alumni would demand his dismissal. Every Indiana alumnus should know why Peden refused to come to Indiana.

"Then Mr. Clevenger, who had all along the invaluable advice of Mr. E. C. Hayes, approached Mr. McMillin. Mr. McMillin stated that he would under no circumstances come to Indiana except on a five-year contract. He felt that he must have five years in which, in spite of some defeats, he could develop football here on a solid and enduring foundation. The contract was made as he wished. Mr. McMillin will be head football coach at least until 1939. I hope longer.

"So Mr. McMillin is here to stay for at least four years. What are you going to do through those years—you who want winning football at Indiana? All the world can hear the shouting on the days of victory. What is the leader to hear and what are his men to hear on the days of defeat?

"You can cry them down. You can break the fighting will of the men. By attacks in the rear you can make it almost impossible to win the four-year campaign even though the commander were Alexander the Great. Even Alexander had to have support. You can give the support. You can enlist not for a day but for the war. You can stand by the leader and his men through thick and thin, through good days and bad. They are worth it. It was such men and it was that man whose glory you shouted to the skies a year ago in November."

IN tidying up his desk, as it were, preparatory to writing "finis" to his work here at Ohio University, Dean Chubb has compiled a complete report of the financial transactions of the Alumni Loan Fund from the time it became active July 21, 1908, when a loan of $50 was made to a student who has since become a professor in one of our tax-supported universities in another state, until December 31, 1935.

As shown by the report, 103 persons have contributed a total of $6,456.67 to a revolving fund from which loans totalling more than fifty thousand dollars have been made by 1,179 borrowers. The loans have averaged $43 each.

In concluding his report Dean Chubb comments that "there are many discouraging features connected with the management of a fund of this character. If borrowers had a conscience and a high sense of financial responsibility there would usually be sufficient money in the fund to meet all reasonable demands, but unfortunately a great many borrowers are very slow in their repayment of their loans. However, in consideration of the fact that of the $50,000 loaned, $40,000 has been repaid and that several thousand that has not been repaid is not due, there is some room for encouragement."

On and About the Campus . . .

MISS GRACE ABBOTT, professor of public welfare in Chicago University's School of Social Service and former Chief of the United States Children's Bureau, was the fourth speaker to be presented at Ohio University in the series of nationally-known leaders in various fields. Miss Abbott delivered four addresses in Alumni Memorial Auditorium on January 28 and 29.

Preceding the Chicago sociologist have been Dr. Arthur Holley Compton, world-renowned physicist and Nobel Prize winner; Dr. Thomas Vernon Smith, Illinois State Senator and professor of philosophy at the University of Chicago; and Dr. Edwin Grant Conklin, biologist and professor emeritus of Princeton University.

Other persons of lesser caliber who have appeared on the campus this semester or who are scheduled to appear soon are Carl Sandburg, poet; Richard Halliburton, adventurer; Elsie Mae Gordon, radio artist; Grover Clark, expert on Chinese affairs; Dorothy Crawford, impersonator; Joan Peebles, contralto; Austin Conradi, pianist; Sherwood Eddy, author and lecturer; the Hayden String Quartet; and Kirby Page, editor and lecturer.

"GEOGRAPHY and National Problems" was the subject of an address delivered by Dr. C. E. Cooper, professor of geography and geology at Ohio University, at the twenty-second annual meeting of the National Council of Geography Teachers. The address was carried by the Columbia Broadcasting System over a nationwide hook-up. Doctor Cooper is president of the National Council of Geography Teachers. Joseph R. Schwendeman, '26, head of the Geography Department at State Teachers College, Moorehead, Minn., addressed one of the N. C. G. T. sessions on "Human Geography for the Senior High School." Harold B. Addicott, '24, head of the Geography Department at State Teachers College, Mayville, N. D., addressed a subsequent session on "Does Geography Need A Press Agent." Wallace Atwood, Sr.,

and Wallace Atwood, Jr., of Clark University, brother and nephew, respectively, of Ohio University's associate professor of geography, Miss Jane K. Atwood, were also speakers on N. C. G. T. programs. The elder Atwood is president of Clark University.

DR. EINAR A. HANSEN, professor of elementary education, has been appointed director of the Summer Session. The 1936 program will be set up much as in previous years except for the new policy, instituted by

OHIO STADIUM AND THE BASEBALL DIAMOND

President James, that professors are to take off one year out of every three, exchanging with faculty members of other universities. The coming summer session will include the regular and post-session periods.

PRESIDENT Herman G. James attended the mid-year meetings of the Ohio Education Association in Columbus as chairman of the Department of Higher Education. He was a luncheon speaker at the meeting of the Central Ohio Schoolmasters Club.

A COLLECTION of books for leisure and non-collateral reading has been installed in open shelves in the main reading room of the Edwin Watts Chubb Library. Prof. C. N. Mackinnon suggested the plan and cooperated in the selection of the books.

THE Y. W. C. A. and Women's League organizations have recently completed furnishing an executive office in West Wing to be used jointly by the two groups. Heavy green and tan curtains, curtained shelves, a conference table, chair, typewriter and desk, and filing cabinets are among the furnishings and equipment installed.

SIR JAMES BARRIE's comedy, "The Admirable Crichton," has been chosen by the Men's Faculty Club as the vehicle for its annual dramatic performance. Dr. Victor Whitehouse, who portrayed Hamlet in the Shakespearean production two years ago, has been selected for the role of the butler, Crichton. The proceeds of the play will go, as usual, to the Student Loan Fund.

HAROLD EVANS, former associate professor of dramatic production at Ohio University, died last month in a New York hospital following a long illness of which arthritis was the chief complication. Mr. Evans served as assistant professor of public speaking from 1927 to 1930 and was associate professor of dramatic production from 1930 to 1932, when he resigned. He held a position as costume designer for the New York Theatre Guild at the time of his death. At Ohio University he will be remembered for his productions of "The Last Mile," "Berkeley Square," "Journey's End," as well as for many smaller productions including several of Eugene O'Neill's plays.

PRIOR to the descent of arctic blasts in Athens three weeks ago the University Infirmary and nursing staff were among the most popular places and groups upon the campus. More than 1,500 treatments had been given gratis for head colds, sniffles and sneezes, since the opening of the school year. The extreme temperatures have acted as a check on the pestiferous ailments.

THE OHIO UNIVERSITY Varsity Debate Team placed third to Muskingum and Capital University in the recent Ohio Intercollegiate Debate Tournament. The Buckeye Debate Conference schedule will open soon.

Voluntary Reserve Officers Training Corps Unit Will Be Established To Open Next Fall

A VOLUNTARY Reserve Officers Training Corps infantry unit will be established at Ohio University with the beginning of the 1936-37 school year, next September, it was announced by President Herman G. James on January 6, following the receipt of a radiogram from the War Department transmitted through Brig. Gen. W. K. Naylor of the Fifth Corps Area, Fort Hayes, Columbus.

Three officers and one enlisted man will be made available to the University by the War Department for the new courses. In a communication to Doctor James, General Naylor indicated that an officer will be assigned to the campus soon to assist in the preparation of schedules, equipment and facilities. The Fifth Corps commander asked that Ohio University provide adequate facilities such as offices, classrooms, store rooms, drill halls, fields, staggered instructional periods, a proper assignment of academic credits to count toward graduation, and any other features necessary to the establishment and efficient development of the unit.

In a statement to the press Doctor James said, "Steps looking towards the possible establishment of a voluntary R. O. T. C. unit at Ohio University had already been taken when I assumed the presidency on July 1. Mr. Gordon K. Bush, University trustee and publisher of the Athens Messenger is entitled to the credit of having conceived and promoted the original idea. I may say, however, that as soon as the matter was brought to my attention I gave complete and unqualified endorsement to the proposal on the ground of its value to Ohio University, to say nothing of other more altruistic considerations.

"I have no hesitancy whatever in reporting that in my opinion the establishment of a voluntary R. O. T. C. unit at the University will insure the enjoyment of all the benefits to be derived from such an arrangement, and because of its voluntary character it will not be subject to the most common objections."

About seventy years ago the United States Government made grants of land for the establishment of a new kind of college. These new colleges and universities were to teach agriculture and mechanic arts, together with military science and tactics and the customary studies needed for a well-rounded school education. This resulted in each state establishing what became known as a land grant college or university, of which there are now 53.

From time to time the government has enacted supplemental legislation, but the original requirements still stand. With the adoption of the present National Defense Act the Federal Government has loaned teachers of military science and tactics to the institutions from the army staff. The army has also loaned equipment and has furnished uniforms and other necessary supplies. The states, for their part of the work, have supplied buildings, operated and maintained them, and given the supplemental services including instruction in general subjects.

The Federal Government has outlined a program of study and instruction which requires of freshmen and sophomores three hours of class work per week. In this course of instruction, members of the unit are given a comprehensive and liberal course of study including not only technical military matters but history, applied mathematics, hygiene, general sanitation, map-making, engineering, mechanics, chemistry, and other subjects.

Following the two years of study in freshman and sophomore years, which is known as the basic course, there is another more advanced program for juniors and seniors which is open only to the more competent and proficient students and open only to those who volunteer for the study.

The completion of the advanced two years of study entitles the graduates to apply for a second lieutenant's commission in the Reserve Corps. Student officers who command the student group are generally drawn from these upper classmen.

A Student Army Training Corps unit of 300 men was inducted into service at Ohio University on Oct. 1, 1918. A unit of the Student Navy Training Corps was established later.

Poem By Eastern Alumna Set to Symphonic Music

An "Ode to Peace," a poem written by Mrs. Caroline Schwefel Brown, set to music from Beethoven's "Ninth Symphony," has recently been sung on radio programs in the East, and on Sunday night, December 1, was used on a WJZ program going out over a national hook-up.

Mrs. Brown is a graduate of Ohio University in the Class of 1896 and is the widow of the late Clyde Brown, '95, who was general solicitor for the New York Central Railroad and one of the country's leading corporation lawyers. Mr. Brown died in 1932. Mrs. Brown is now living near Norwalk, Conn.

The poem, according to Mrs. Brown, was written for that part of Beethoven's Symphony where Schiller's "Ode to Peace" is usually sung. Printed copies of the words and music have been presented to Prof. C. C. Robinson, head of the School of Music and director of the University Choir, who has announced that he will include the number in forthcoming programs.

Lima Chapter Sponsors Dance

One of the brightest spots of the early holiday social season in Lima was the "University" dance, Dec. 14, sponsored by the Lima chapter of the Ohio University Alumni Association and held at Hotel Barr. Eighty couples were in attendance. The proceeds of the dance were added to the chapter's scholarship loan fund.

The grand march was lead by Mr. and Mrs. John F. Ridenour (Jane Jones, '31x), the latter being president of the alumni organization. Favors were distributed at the conclusion of the march.

Mrs. E. Perry Webb was general chairman of the dance committee. She was assisted by Harold King, Mrs. Robert McVey (Wilma M. Davies), Mr. Webb, Mrs. King, Mr. McVey, Inez Agerter, Edith Ridenour, John Trace, Don Yant, and Mr. John F. Ridenour.

The Lima chapter is hoping to have Coach Don Peden as its guest for their Founders' Day meeting in February.

Dean Edwin Watts Chubb To Retire at End of Year

(Continued from page 2)—loans totalling $50,775.40. In 1900 he founded the English Club, an honorary organization for outstanding English students in the College of Arts and Sciences. As a member of the Lafayette chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, he was active in bringing a chapter of this famous society to the Ohio University campus, being a delegate to the National Council of Phi Beta Kappa at the time the local chapter was granted. He has served both as president and as secretary of the Ohio University group.

As an author and lecturer Dean Chubb is widely known and highly regarded. He has given about 500 lectures before more than sixty teachers' associations in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Wisconsin and California, and he has given hundreds of high school commencement addresses. His books, which have been adopted by Reading Circles in Ohio, Indiana, and South Dakota, and which are used as texts and reference works in scores of colleges and universities, include English Words, Stories of Authors, Sketches of Great Painters, and Masters of English Literature. As a writer he has also contributed articles to such eminent magazines as the Atlantic Monthly, Scribners, Poet Lore, etc.

Few people have enjoyed the distinction during their life time or active association with an institution, of having a building named in their honor. Dean Chubb's generous love and appreciation of books and his scholarly achievements, however, have gained for him such a recognition at Ohio University where the library erected in 1931 was named and dedicated the Edwin Watts Chubb Library.

To enjoy with Dean Chubb the greater freedom and leisure which will come with the retiring years, will be Mrs. Chubb, who is known to many generations of students as a hostess to the English Club, as a member of the Y. W. C. A. Advisory Board, and as a patroness of one of the social sororities. Dean and Mrs. Chubb are the parents of Mrs. W. C. Munds (Catherine Chubb, '18), Corpus Christi, Texas, and Edwin D. Chubb, '21, Cheshire, Conn.

Charles E. Fiddler, '28 (M. A. '33), is concluding his second year as dean and professor of psychology of Alfred Holbrook College, Manchester, Ohio.

Ohio's Sophomore Courtmen Waging Valiant Battle for High Place in Buckeye Loop

WHILE Coach Brandon "Butch" Grover's basketball team is pausing for breath and examinations at the half way mark in their 1935-36 schedule, the time is appropriate to review the first half of the season just ended with the Bobcats panting in third place in the Buckeye Conference chase. During the month of January the Bobcats have played eleven games, nine of which were away from home, and they all need the present rest.

Their standing in the Buckeye at present is similar to the position held by the Ohio team at the end of last year's race though their percentage is much better. Of their first five league games the Bobcats have won three and lost to Cincinnati and Ohio Wesleyan, the two teams that are ahead of them at present. Last year Ohio finished the Buckeye season with three victories against five defeats. In all of their games played to date they have defeated Bliss, Marietta, Ohio School of Chiropody, Miami, Marshall, and Xavier, losing to Coshocton, Mt. Union, Good-year, Ohio Wesleyan, Muskingum and Cincinnati. Hopes for a successful season rest with the fact that of the seven remaining games on their schedule the Bobcats have previously defeated five of their foes.

Mathematically the Bobcat courtiers have a chance of emulating the feat of their fellow gridders in winning the Buckeye title but the possibility is a remote one. To do this they would have to sweep through all of the Buckeye teams during the second half, including the strong Wesleyan and Cincinnati quint, and the Bishops would have to upset the Bearcats in their return engagement at Delaware. This would send Ohio, Ohio Wesleyan, and Cincinnati under the wire in a dead heat. However, there is a chance if the Bobcats can do the Herculean feat of dusting them all off going down the stretch, for the odds stand in favor of Wesleyan checking the Bearcats in their second meeting.

Considering that Coach Grover opened practice this season with but one letterman, George May, in the fold, Ohio's record against the best competition the state has to offer is a commendable one. At the beginning of the season and up until after the Wesleyan game five sophomores were representing the Bobcats and there are still four second-year men in the varsity lineup. May was benched during the warm-up period of pre-conference games but his experience and aggressiveness demanded a position among the starters and it is unlikely that he will be removed again from his regular post. May's heart is for victory and there is no one on the squad with the spirit and dash of his play in recovering shots from the bankboard. The rest of the team has been playing capable ball with George Hood, Nick Lalich, Gene Rinta, and John Malokas, all good men, but they have the same affliction that troubled last winter's five. They can not play forty minutes of their best basketball. In every game this season that they have lost they have started slowly and have fallen apart when the timer's clock reached the four-minutes-to-play mark. This was especially true of the Cincinnati game in which a victory would have sent Ohio into a three-way tie for first place. In this game ten minutes elapsed before Ohio scored its first field goal but still with five minutes remaining to play they held a two point lead. The game ended 34-29 in favor of the Bearcats. It is unfair, however, to be too harsh in our criticism for they are playing a brand of ball to the liking of the fans. They play with a speed and a zip that keeps things moving from whistle to gun and when they whip their inexperience they are going to be mighty hard to stop.

Athletic Director O. C. Bird has mapped out a wrestling card for Coach Thor Olson and his crew of grapplers that would test the prowess of any collegiate group of matmen in the country. The schedule calls for the Bobcats to test holds and stamina against Ohio State here, West Virginia both here and at Morgantown, Kent U. at Kent, and the University of Chicago here, some time next month. A tough bundle of assignments for Thor who is facing the season with few veterans at hand. The Bobcat matmen have already engaged the Scarlet and Gray of Ohio State here with the visitors taking two falls and five time decisions to defeat Ohio 25-3. Only Bob Tipton, Bobcat veteran, managed to beat his opponent when he gained a time advantage of five minutes over Schurger of Ohio State in the 155-pound class.

For the first time in Bobcat history Ohio launched a swimming team in intercollegiate competition when Coach Jerry Hughes released his natators against Ohio Wesleyan at Delaware. The meet ended, 40-26, with the Bishops out in front of the Bobcats who have been water shy for lo, these many years. The Ohio pioneers have been practicing vigorously in the pool of the Women's Gym, however, and hope to give a better account of themselves when the Wesleyan team comes here for a return meet on February 29. The rest of the schedule will pit the Bobcat mermen against Case on Feb. 7, Fenn on Feb. 8, and Western Reserve on Feb. 15, all in Cleveland.

NOTES: After the East-West game on New Year's Day, Beise, fullback for the East team and Minnesota star during the past season, told a reporter from San Francisco that Art Lewis, Bobcat tackle, was the greatest open field blocker he had ever seen. . . . Lewis turned down an offer from Glenn "Pop" Warner to join the all-Star team that Warner was taking to Honolulu for a series of games.

Edwin W. Timm, '33, ('34, M.A.), who has been an accountant with the Glidden Company, Cleveland, one of the country's leading manufacturers of paints and varnishes, will be advanced to a travelling auditorship on Feb. 1. Mr. Timm's territory will be the entire United States.

T. Lyston Fultz, '27, who has been a federal relief worker in Meigs county, has accepted a position as instructor in social science and recreational guidance at the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home, Xenia.

A residence resembling a medieval castle, located a mile or so north of Logan on State Route 31, has caused wonderment on the part of innumerable travelers as they pursued their ways up or down the Hocking Valley. Not many, unless members of the neighboring community, know that the house was erected by a graduate of Ohio University, Lucius Wright, '62, scholar, mathematician, astronomer and Latin student, who died Aug. 19, 1923. Located on a hill, it was designed so that he might have a clear point for observing the heavens. The tower was constructed with a rotating dome to accommodate a telescope. In 1914 Mr. Wright planned to install the instrument but found that the lens he wanted was made only in Germany and, the World War being in full swing, he was unable to obtain it. The house was completed nevertheless, but an illness occurred to prevent the ultimate equipment of the observatory. After Mr. Wright's death his widow ordered the dome removed from the tower and a conventional roof placed in its stead. Mr. Wright, a descendant of the second-oldest family in Hocking county, held degrees from Ohio University and Heidelberg University in Germany. For many years he practiced law in Kansas City. It is said that he was as fluent in the use of Latin as in the use of the English language.

Friends of Judge Lewis H. Miller, '13, believe that the Ripley, W. Va., jurist will be the next governor of the Mountain State. Judge Miller will be a candidate for the gubernatorial office in the primary election which takes place May 12. He is a Republican and at the present time is unopposed for the nomination. He is judge of the Fifth Judicial Circuit of West Virginia.

Upon the death, Jan. 3, 1936, of John R. Scott, '64, Judge Anselm Tupper Holcomb, '67, Portsmouth, became the second-oldest living alumnus of Ohio University. Top honors are held by Dr. William H. Scott, '62, Columbus, a brother of the late Prof. J. R. Scott. All members of intervening classes have now passed on. Judge Holcomb, who is highly respected for his political and civic services in Portsmouth, bears the name of Anselm Tupper, the first man to teach in the State of Ohio. Major Tupper "kept school" in Campus Martius, Marietta, in the winter of 1789.

Roy McClanahan, '32, and Mrs. McClanahan (Clarice Totman, '32), are now residents of Bellefontaine where the former is engaged as a high school instructor. Mr. McClanahan was for two years a member of the faculty of the high school at Junction City.

Marlette C. Covert, '29, and Mrs. Covert (Carolyne C. Christy, '30), Augusta, Me., had as their guests one week-end in October Dr. John T. Sprague, '31, and Mrs. Sprague (Emily Liddell, '30), Athens. The week-end was spent in the Maine woods where Dr. Sprague bagged a deer.

As the editor hovers over the radiator in his office in East Wing, in an almost vain effort to coax heat out of the device, the thermometer meanwhile registering down in the 20 minuses, he has before him a letter received from Dr. Stanley Dougan, '14, a physician of San Jose, Cal. "Stan" and Mrs. Dougan (Nelle Stokes, '16x) have just returned from a trip around the world during which they took between four and five thousand feet of motion pictures and a great many still shots. Enclosed in the letter were snaps of Stanley and the "Missus" in front of the sphinx and the pyramids near Cairo, Egypt. There is no sphinx-like expression on Mr. Dougan's face. It is plain to be seen that he is thoroughly enjoying the visit to these famous, old world monuments. In another picture, taken in Bombay, India, the Doctor, wearing one of those "Bring-Em-Back-Alive" sun helmets, is standing beside an elephant and its mahout, said elephant having been his taxi during his stay in Bombay. Another picture, taken in Southern China, shows Dr. and Mrs. Dougan as passengers in a coolie-drawn rickshaw. The Egyptian picture is reproduced here.

Mrs. Mabel Nesbitt Hicks, '13, 2-yr., widow of the late Frederick J. Hicks, Lorain, is a teacher in the local adult education schools. She states that "I am teaching English to foreigners and find the work fascinating. Adult education has no problems of discipline for they are eager to learn. Enrolled in my classes are Syrians, Hungarians, Poles, Italians, Serbs, and Bulgars.

Advanced degrees conferred at Ohio State University on Dec. 20 included the M.A. (in education) for Ivan R. Amerine, '20, and Russell B. Cooper, '20, and the Ph. D. (in botany) for Walter W. Wiggins, successor to Prof. O. E. Dunlap, '12, (M. S. in Ed. '13) of the Ohio University faculty.

To Mrs. Harry L. Barr (Marie Luntz, '15, 2-yr.), University City, Mo., the editor is indebted for a marked copy of the St. Louis Star-Times that contained a report of the address delivered by Mrs.

Wanda Kirkbride Farr before one of the sessions of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in December. Mrs. Farr, a member of the Class of 1915, is the widow of Clifford H. Farr, former head of the Henry Shaw School of Botany at Washington University, St. Louis. Following Mr. Farr's death she continued her study in botany and became a member of the staff of the Boyce Thompson Institute for Plant Research in Yonkers, N. Y., where for the past five years she has carried on research work on cotton fiber. At the St. Louis meeting Mrs. Farr disclosed secrets of the cell construction in cotton which were revealed by chemical and microscopic study.

Disputed is the editor's recent statement that "more members of her (Josephine McVay's) father's family have attended Ohio University than those of any other family." The disputant is Russell D. Tubaugh, '25, Cleveland Heights, who points with justifiable pride to the fact that Bess Tubaugh, Russell Tubaugh, Blanche Tubaugh, Estelle Tubaugh, Ruth Tubaugh, and Harry Tubaugh, are all members of one family, being sisters and brothers, who have attended Ohio University. Four of these have completed work and have received degrees, two will soon finish their work, while the last named died during his first year in the University. The editor concedes the honors to the clan Tubaugh, for in the case of the McVays, uncles, aunts, cousins, and members of collateral family branches were included when the statement was made. Russell Tubaugh, an instructor in Roosevelt Junior High School, Cleveland, was president of the Class of 1925.

Dorothy Stevenson, '28, Dresden, resigned a position this fall as a Muskingum county music supervisor and sailed Nov. 29 on the S. S. President Hoover for Singapore, in the Malaya Peninsula, to teach in the Methodist Girls' School.

Lillian Denner, '29, instructor in science in Bloom Junior High School, Cincinnati, engaged in the study of German at the University of Wisconsin last summer. On Oct. 18 she was initiated into Delta Phi Alpha, national honorary German fraternity at the University of Cincinnati.

While in the business of correcting the records, the editor will take occasion to apologize to I. M. Foster, '95, and to all of his fellow members of the Philomathean Literary Society, for reporting in the last issue of The Ohio Alumnus that the Athenians were the top heavy victors in that famous baseball game in 1893. Perhaps the error was the result of wishful thinking on the part of the editor who is a one-time president of the Athenian Society. Catcher Foster, whose Philomathean team finished in the lead, 25 to 4, graciously remarks that "my recollection is that the Philomatheans were not defeating the Athenians along literary lines with as decisive victories as this baseball game indicates. However, the literary rivalry was not only keen but rather evenly balanced."

Carl H. Roberts, '27, instructor in history and government in the Athens Senior High School, has been asked by the National Society for the Study of Education to be a member of a preliminary conference which will meet in St. Louis on Feb. 20 to discuss a yearbook on the subject of social studies. The National Council for Social Studies has suggested to the Society for the Study of Education, the latter being one of outstanding research bodies in education in the United States, that it use social studies as a subject for its next yearbook. The N.S.S.E.'s annual publication is devoted to a single subject each year.

What is perhaps a record for physicians practicing outside of a large center of population is the experience of Dr. W. Lewis Brown, '26, Gallipolis, who attended at the births of five sets of twins during 1935. Dr. Brown delivered two pairs of twins on the same day, Dec. 1, 1935, within five hours. In addition to playing "stork" this Ohioan has engaged in an extensive general practice, and has also been coroner of Gallia county for over a year. He was recently elected president of the Gallia County Medical Society. In 1933 Dr. Brown married Miss Dorothy Dailey, '27, of Athens. The Browns are the parents of a daughter, Lynn, born in January, 1935.

And speaking of doctors, Dr. H. E. LeFever, '23, a member of the Ohio State University Medical School faculty and a prominent Columbus physician and surgeon, has just been elected vice chairman of the medical staff of White Cross Hospital, Columbus. Dr. LeFever recently addressed the Athens County Medical Society on the subject "Head Injuries."

Succeeding Francina Gross, '25, as a clerk in the office of President H. G. James, Margaret Porter, '35, will supervise the keeping of records in connection with the National Youth Administration work at Ohio University. Both Miss Gross and Miss Porter are Athenians, the latter being an honor graduate in her class. The former, with her family, expects to spend the remainder of the winter in the South.

Harry L. Ridenour, '12, now head of the English department of Baldwin-Wallace College, Berea, is making a collection of the folk songs and ballads which have been sung here in Ohio. Only the songs which are truly traditional folk material, that is, the songs which have been learned by the singer from someone else and not from books or the radio can be used. He hopes ultimately to publish a volume showing Ohio's rich heritage in this field. Any help from Ohio University's alumni family will be appreciated. Send him the words of songs about Indians, old battles, cowboys, frontiersmen, river boatmen, play parties, lovers and their sweethearts, mountains—in fact, any songs which have the mark of being truly traditional folk material. Old songs written in copybooks, old letters, old tablets, etc., are of value. Address him thus: H. L. Ridenour, Baldwin-Wallace College, Berea, Ohio.

Friends of Charles H. Goddard, '27, who visit Gotham will find this popular former Ohio University campus musician in the General Motors Building, Columbus Circle, behind the plate glass door with the black letters "District Manager, Pittsburgh Reflector Company." Charlie and the young lady whom he married not long ago have their home in Pelham, N. Y.

Second-Oldest Alumnus Dies

In Missouri at Advanced Age

Prof. John Rutledge Scott, '64, aged 93, last of the charter members of the Ohio University chapter of Delta Tau Delta fraternity, and second oldest University alumnus, died Jan. 3, 1936, at his home in Columbia, Mo., where he had resided since 1897.

It was Professor Scott's request that his funeral be held at the Delta Tau Delta House in Athens with members of the undergraduate chapter in charge. Participating in the service were the Rev. Dr. Wilbur H. Fowler, pastor of the Athens Methodist Episcopal Church, and Dr. Charles F. Scott, Pittsburgh, nephew of the deceased and a retired member of the faculty of Yale University, who read a biographical sketch. Members of the fraternity sang "Our Delta Vow," a song written by Professor Scott, and "Delta Shelter." In accordance with another request of the deceased the ashes of his wife, who died in 1898, were placed beside the casket during the funeral service and were interred with it at the cemetery.

Professor Scott had served as a member of the faculty of Johns Hopkins University at Baltimore, of Washington University at St. Louis, and for thirteen years prior to his retirement in 1910 had taught elocution at the University of Missouri.

Among those attending the funeral in Athens was Professor Scott's brother, Dr. William Henry Scott, '62, Ohio University's oldest living alumnus. Dr. Scott observed his 95th birthday on Sept. 14, 1935.

John Rutledge Scott was a lineal descendant of John Rutledge, a signer of the Declaration of Independence.

Judge Roy J. Gillen, '15, of the Jackson County Common Pleas Court, has informed his friends that he will be a candidate for the office of judge of the District Court of Appeals in the next election. Judge Gillen is a former Ohio State senator, having been at one time chairman of the senate finance committee. He was elected to alumni membership in Ohio University's Phi Beta Kappa Chapter in 1931. He is a graduate of the Ohio State University Law School. When a youth of 15 years of age he was severely burned with molten iron while a summer vacation worker in a foundry. He has been totally blind since this unfortunate accident and his exceptional record as a scholar and a jurist is all the more remarkable on account of his physical handicap.

B. T. Grover, '19, head coach of basketball at Ohio University, is a member of the Board of Directors of the National Association of Basketball Coaches of the United States. His election to such a position is a high compliment to his ability as a coach and a recognition of his standing in the coaching fraternity. Coach Grover is also Ohio State Chairman of the Naismith Fund Drive which will be held from February 7 to February 15. This fund is being raised to honor Dr. James A. Naismith, 73-year old veteran and coach of sports who will retire from the physical education department at the University of Kansas this year. Dr. Naismith "invented" the game of basketball which is now played in the United States and twenty-five foreign countries. It is hoped that funds will be made available to send Dr. and Mrs. Naismith to the 1936 Olympics in Berlin, and to establish a small annuity for the former.

Ted Preston, '34, Athens, who received an M. A. degree from Harvard University last June and who went to France in September to teach under the auspices of the Institute of International Education, was assigned for instructional duties to the Ecole Normale d'Instituteurs at Macon, (Saone et Loire).

Bernard A. Shilt, '23, is president of the Buffalo (N. Y.) Schoolmasters' Association. For the issue of Dec. 1935, he was editor of the Business Education Quarterly. He is chairman of the accounting and law department of Buffalo's Hutchinson-Central High School.

A series of advertisements prepared by F. D. Forsyth, '11, cashier of the Bank of Athens, N. B. A., for the Athens Messenger, designed to offer public understanding and confidence in banks has received recognition in four national magazines, The American Banker, a daily publication, devoting a full column to the series, while other comments appeared in The Bankers' Magazine, Money and Commerce, and The Rand-McNally Bankers' Monthly. Mr. Forsyth is the author of fifteen articles dealing with banking practices and problems.

Clifford L. Hughes, '33, Akron, whose brilliant academic record at Ohio University, may defy assault for some time to come, after two years at Yale University, entered Duke University last fall to complete work for a doctorate in the field of economics. The only blemish on an otherwise perfect four-year, straight "A" scholastic record at Ohio University were two "B" grades in gym work.

DEATHS

SCHOFIELD—Belated news of the death of Frank C. Schofield, '95, ('97, A.M.) a high school instructor in Palo Alto, Calif., has recently arrived at the Alumni Office. Mr. Schofield died very suddenly on March 18, 1935. He was an instructor in English in Polytechnic High School.

HORN—B. L. Horn, '01, Higley, Ariz., died Dec. 13, 1935, in a Phoenix hospital as the direct result of a coronary thrombosis. He was secretary of the Chandler Heights Citrus Irrigation District and a director of the Mesa Citrus Growers. Prior to taking up fruit growing he had engaged in the plumbing and hardware business in New Hampshire. He was a one-time coroner of Athens County and also a city editor of the Athens Messenger. Mr. Horn's record as a Y.M.C.A. World War worker in New York City and in France and, for two years, as an executive of the Near East Relief in the Russian Caucasus, Constantinople, and Syria, is a highly meritorious one. Mr. Horn was the father of Mrs. Glen Stancart (Lillian Horn, '22x), Athens, and a brother of the late Clarence H. Horn, '01, 2-yr. A daughter by a second marriage was born in Sidon, Syria, who with his wife, Mrs. Eleanor Horn, survives him.
